The University of Toronto is conducting an extensive international search for the Dean of the Faculty of Medicine and invites applications, nominations and expressions of interest, with the appointment to be effective January 2015.

Established in 1827 by royal charter, the University of Toronto, with one of the strongest research and teaching faculties in North America, is ranked in the top 20 universities in the world and 1st in Canada. The University has more than 20,000 faculty and staff and some 80,000 students enrolled across three campuses, an annual budget of almost $2 billion and research grant and contract support of more than $1.2 billion. Its library is consistently ranked as one of the top three research libraries in North America, with over 21 million holdings. Setting a new high water mark for philanthropy in Canada, the University’s Boundless Campaign has secured more than $1.4 billion towards its goal of $2 billion. Additional information is available at the University’s website www.utoronto.ca.

Founded in 1843, the Faculty of Medicine is at the centre of one of North America’s and the world’s largest and most unique health science complexes. Located in the heart of a large, multicultural city, the Faculty works in harmony with its nine fully affiliated hospitals, 18 community affiliated hospitals and health facilities, and internationally recognized academic and research centres to continuously produce major breakthroughs in health research and support internationally recognized researchers. It is the second largest of 17 divisions in the University with over 7,700 faculty members, 8,300 students, 140 endowed chairs and 121 Canada Research Chairs, and offers programs in undergraduate and postgraduate medicine, rehabilitation sciences, medical radiation sciences, community and public health, physician assistant education, and doctoral and professional graduate degrees. For more information, please visit www.medicine.utoronto.ca.

The Dean will be a distinguished and visionary leader, researcher and educator with outstanding academic and professional achievements. A record of leadership success, with experience in developing and empowering faculty and staff, building collaborative teams, fundraising, and relating to a wide range of internal and external partners, will be required in the ideal candidate. The Dean will foster academic innovation, promote and support research and effectively manage the resources of the Faculty. He or she will possess an open and collegial style, outstanding management, communication and interpersonal skills, a creative approach to problem solving, and a strong commitment to academic excellence in research, practice and teaching. Spearheading the Faculty’s collaborations within the Toronto Academic Health Science Network (TAHSN), the Dean will be a lead contributor in setting directions for the University and its health science partners. The successful candidate will also assume the role of Vice-Provost, Relations with Health Care Institutions.

Recently named one of Canada’s Top 100 Employers for the 7th year and one of Canada’s Best Diversity Employers for the 6th consecutive year, the University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from visible minority group members, women, Aboriginal persons, persons with disabilities, members of sexual minority groups, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

The advisory committee will begin the consideration of candidates immediately and will continue until the position is filled. Applications should include a letter of introduction, curriculum vitae, and the names of three references (who will not be contacted without consent of the applicant) and should be submitted electronically, in confidence, to the University’s executive search consultants:

Laverne Smith & Associates Inc.
1 Yonge Street, Suite 1801
Toronto, Ontario M5E 1W7
uoftMedicine@lavernesmith.com

The University of Toronto is conducting an extensive international search for the Dean of the Faculty of Medicine and invites applications, nominations and expressions of interest, with the appointment to be effective January 2015.

Established in 1827 by royal charter, the University of Toronto, with one of the strongest research and teaching faculties in North America, is ranked in the top 20 universities in the world and 1st in Canada. The University has more than 20,000 faculty and staff and some 80,000 students enrolled across three campuses, an annual budget of almost $2 billion and research grant and contract support of more than $1.2 billion. Its library is consistently ranked as one of the top three research libraries in North America, with over 21 million holdings. Setting a new high water mark for philanthropy in Canada, the University’s Boundless Campaign has secured more than $1.4 billion towards its goal of $2 billion. Additional information is available at the University’s website www.utoronto.ca.

Founded in 1843, the Faculty of Medicine is at the centre of one of North America’s and the world’s largest and most unique health science complexes. Located in the heart of a large, multicultural city, the Faculty works in harmony with its nine fully affiliated hospitals, 18 community affiliated hospitals and health facilities, and internationally recognized academic and research centres to continuously produce major breakthroughs in health research and support internationally recognized researchers. It is the second largest of 17 divisions in the University with over 7,700 faculty members, 8,300 students, 140 endowed chairs and 121 Canada Research Chairs, and offers programs in undergraduate and postgraduate medicine, rehabilitation sciences, medical radiation sciences, community and public health, physician assistant education, and doctoral and professional graduate degrees. For more information, please visit www.medicine.utoronto.ca.

The Dean will be a distinguished and visionary leader, researcher and educator with outstanding academic and professional achievements. A record of leadership success, with experience in developing and empowering faculty and staff, building collaborative teams, fundraising, and relating to a wide range of internal and external partners, will be required in the ideal candidate. The Dean will foster academic innovation, promote and support research and effectively manage the resources of the Faculty. He or she will possess an open and collegial style, outstanding management, communication and interpersonal skills, a creative approach to problem solving, and a strong commitment to academic excellence in research, practice and teaching. Spearheading the Faculty’s collaborations within the Toronto Academic Health Science Network (TAHSN), the Dean will be a lead contributor in setting directions for the University and its health science partners. The successful candidate will also assume the role of Vice-Provost, Relations with Health Care Institutions.

Recently named one of Canada’s Top 100 Employers for the 7th year and one of Canada’s Best Diversity Employers for the 6th consecutive year, the University of Toronto is strongly committed to diversity within its community and especially welcomes applications from visible minority group members, women, Aboriginal persons, persons with disabilities, members of sexual minority groups, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of ideas.

The advisory committee will begin the consideration of candidates immediately and will continue until the position is filled. Applications should include a letter of introduction, curriculum vitae, and the names of three references (who will not be contacted without consent of the applicant) and should be submitted electronically, in confidence, to the University’s executive search consultants:

Laverne Smith & Associates Inc.
1 Yonge Street, Suite 1801
Toronto, Ontario M5E 1W7
uoftMedicine@lavernesmith.com